Photosynthesis converts CO2 and water into organic matter using light energy.
Catalysts lower the activation energy of chemical reactions.